Stanley Access Technologies Acquires Action Door Controls

Stanley Access Technologies is pleased to announce the acquisition of Action Door Controls located in Bluffdale, Utah (Salt Lake City area). Founded in 1988 by Ron and Darnell Crapo, Action Door Controls joined the Access Technologies distribution network in 2003. Action Door Controls is the premier provider of door automation in Utah, Western Wyoming as well as Eastern Idaho. The current owners and management team of Ron and Chad Crapo have grown the business through their extraordinary passion for customer service and quality. The employees of Action Door Controls are some of the best in the industry and are the primary reason for Action's leadership position in the markets served.

The integration process will begin in September. Ron Crapo will assist in the transition then he has decided to retire in order to have more time to enjoy some travel, his grandchildren, and family. Chad Crapo will continue to run the business from the present location reporting to John Shafer through the integration process. We couldn't be more proud to have such a prestigious organization join the Stanley Access Technologies family.

Please join us in welcoming the Action Door Controls group to the Stanley Family. More information will be made available over the next several weeks.
